Eisteddfod yr Urdd is Europe's largest Youth Festival. The Festival is a celebration of the Welsh language, culture and the wealth of young talent in Wales today. Each year approximately 15,000 children and young people come to compete. The location of the Eisteddfod in 2025 will be Margam Park. The Park will be transformed into a vibrant area for children and young people from all over Wales and beyond. In addition to the keen competing, there will be exciting exhibitions and activities in the GwyddonLe and the Art and Craft tent, and performance stages with dancers, live bands and groups entertaining all day, every day. The Eisteddfod Maes gives a taste of what the Urdd has to offer and a host of artistic and sporting activities are held. There will also be a Triban Festival for those who enjoy live Welsh music, enough to entertain everyone. Children, young people, schools and families come from all over Wales and beyond to compete in the 394 competitions held at the festival. Local children will also have the opportunity to be part of the shows, projects and events that will lead up to the Festival. www.urdd.cymru/en/eisteddfod/
